BARTELL PENSION GETS FINAL HA-HA

Supervisor Harry Bartell, oft-accused of tailoring a supervisor-pension plan to his own measure, got a hatful of crocodile tears Monday when failure of the measure was announced before the Centerville Chamber of Commerce.

"I see the Legislature pigeon-holed Bartell's pension," commented W. R. Goodwin. "Let's take up a collection for him."

Goodwin passed a plate, which yielded 19 cents and an olive pit from the chamber lunchers.

Centerville Plan Ready for Review

A Chamber of Commerce committee's suggested plan for the development of Centerville is ready for submission, the organization was told Monday by Committee Chairman Lee Williams.

Chamber President Romeo Brunelli said he will set a date next Monday for a night meeting to discuss the proposal. Williams' committee was appointed to dovetail Centerville into the Washington Township "master plan" presented last November by the Alameda County Planning Commission.

Williams said his committee has been faced with the grim fact that Centerville has no side streets, and nothing on which to base a business district except Main Street, which is also State Highway 17, the heavily-traveled principal artery between Oakland and San Jose.

"Maybe we'd better move the town to a new location," Williams remarked. "It's a discouraging prospect to try to make anything out of the present cramped district."

Brunelli said that after the chamber members hear the committee's proposal, that all landowners ought to be asked to volunteer opinions.

Williams said he doubts that any direct interest will be expressed until zoning actually follows the plan. He commented that although his committee's work was given wide publicity, and although residents were asked for suggestions, not a single one was forthcoming.

IRVINGTON SETS ZONING CONFABS

Following an inconclusive public meeting called by the local chamber of commerce Friday night, Irvingtonians were asked Monday to take their individual zoning wishes directly to four chamber committeemen.

Chamber President Wallace Pond requested those with industrial problems to contact Allan Hirsch, those with agricultural zoning wishes to see John Wipfli, residential zone matters to be referred to William Humpert and those interested in commercial zoning to check with Karl Christiansen.

The suggestions presumably will be turned over to Pond's planning committee for incorporation in a "master plan" for Irvington before this is submitted to the County Planning Commission.

Roy Clark, rancher, attempted to conclude a lengthy discussion by moving to recommend residential zoning along Driscoll Road. But, the motion failed for lack of support.

John J. Thomas, planning commission secretary, said his staff believes Irvington should retain its identity and try to grow in a compact fashion, not in "a sprawl." His suggested map showed eight "neighborhood centers," with schools and shopping areas, surrounding the present town. Industry would be located along the railroad rights-of-way and extend east only at the proposed brick works on the bend of Durham Road.

Dairymen Joe Costa and Wipfli again stated their opposition to agricultural zoning, which would prevent them from eventually subdividing their property.

ANOTHER STEP FOR DRAINAGE PROJECT

A $1,750,000 flood-control and drainage project for Irvington, Mission San Jose and Warm Springs was recommended Friday to the Board of Supervisors by their flood-control advisory commission.

W. D. Patterson of Newark, chairman of the commission, said the next step will be for the supervisors to set public hearings so that residents may air their ideas on the project.

If adopted, a $500,000 bond issue in the area probably will be the first step, according to Engineer Herbert Crowle. It would be possible under powers granted the county to administer Zone 6 of the county flood-control district, set up last January.

Protests of more than half of the landowners in the region can block election, which in turn needs a two-thirds vote to pass, Patterson stressed.

Contained in the project are proposed canals to drain the slopes west of Mission San Jose into Stivers Lagoon. Outlets north and south of Irvington would carry surplus water to the Bay. Similar canals are projected around Warm Springs.

Development of the area has been held up for lack of proper drainage.

Patterson added hearings on Zone 5, the Alameda Creek watershed, will be held soon in Livermore and Pleasanton in a last effort to have those communities join with Washington Township in bridling the creek.

Flood curbs around Alvarado and Hillview Crest were approved by the supervisors last week. They are part of Zone 3-a—the Hayward-Mt. Eden area.

Township Incorporation Expensive If 'City' Takes Over County Roads

(Second in a series on the Coro Report, recently-released survey of the possibilities of Township incorporation on a city basis.)

By STUART NIXON

Would "Washington City" be like a child cast loose from its mother's apronstrings?

The Coro survey raises this question, but does not entirely answer it. In the final analysis, Researcher Thomas A. DeRiemer says, everything would depend on the city's citizens.

One of the major responsibilities the new "city" would have to take on would be 147 miles of roads. Since Washington Township isn't incorporated, Alameda County now sees to their construction and repair.

This means, of course, that Alameda County foots the bill for paving, grading shoulders, filling chuckholes, etc. It also means the county collects around $200,000 from the State of California for doing the job, plus many thousands more from local taxpayers for this service.

Would "Washington City" want the job? Could it afford it?

Without giving a direct answer, DeRiemer puts forth these facts:

1. State law provides that cities may contract with a county to construct roads. It has never been done in this county, however, and county officials, speaking informally, doubt that it would be approved.

2. Maintenance work on existing county roads averages $800 to $1000 per year, per mile of road.

3. New construction—or reconstruction—costs anywhere from $25,000 per mile (Decoto streets) to $60,000 in new subdivisions.

The report continues: "With incorporation, the 'city' would receive the assistance of (State) funds, currently divided among cities on the basis of population. At the present time, the entire county road construction program is by similar funds. No funds were allocated for road construction from the county treasury."

During a recent five-year period, the county however passed along sums such as $22,733 to the City of Hayward, for road work within the city's boundaries. Some such money could be expected here.

In addition, the new township-city could expect to receive $73,000 from the State gas tax "kick-back," all of which must be used for road construction. Another $102,000 would be available from the State vehicle license coffers. This too could be used for roads.

Then there is the State "Christmas Tree" fund, a possible first-year contribution of $260,000—part of which could go for streets and roads.

All-in-all, a total of about $200,000 might be available. Could "Washington City" run its street-and-road program on that?

Probably not. No other area in the county has so many miles of roads to maintain. The Township is too big. And in the past, a benevolent county thought nothing of running a mile of road to Farmer Doakes' doorstep, making a friend of Farmer Doakes, but leaving an expensive legacy to the taxpayers at large.

Roads which bind the Township together, also might prove the biggest factor in keeping its towns from incorporating together.

LeRoy Broun, Centerville attorney and original backer of the Coro Survey, has a suggestion:

"Perhaps a closer-knit area could incorporate, leaving out the hill and marsh lands. In that way, we'd still get the taxes and State grants, without having to take over all those county roads."

(Next week: The Sanitary Districts.)

Answer to this week's Guess Who: Jack MacGregor, superintendent of Newark's school system.

AGED ACROBAT BURNED IN M.S.J. HOME

Mission San Jose's A. R. Thompson, 75-year-old former tight rope walker, was critically burned last Thursday when his nightgown caught fire from an oil stove in his bedroom.

Thompson, once a star circus acrobat, was saved from possible death when his wife and former tight-rope partner, Ellen, heard him call for help from their bedroom.

She rushed in and beat out the flames that enveloped the elderly man. Dr. R. B. Fisher, summoned to the scene, said that although Thompson suffered second and third-degree burns over part of his body and one leg, he appeared in good spirits.

Exactly one year ago Thompson wandered away from his home at Mission San Jose and was given up for dead. Seven days later he was found, barely alive, in a field one mile away where he had fallen.

He told his wife he kept alive by chewing grass stems for the moisture.

Thompson is in Highland Hospital.

With Frank Romero's pitching keeping a Hunter's Point Navy nine from getting their land-legs, Centerville's Bearcats took another contest last Sunday, 9-2.

Romero fanned 14 batters, walked one and permitted seven hits. Rightfielder Angelo Noceti was the big stick, with four safeties in five chances, driving in three runs. Shortstop Tom Kelly had two for four.

Three Navy errors in the first frame aided the 'Cats to score four runs.

BELLARMINE WINS NON-LOOP TILT, 9-7

A perfectly-executed squeeze play in the bottom of the eighth inning gave Bellarmine a 7-6 win over the Washington Huskies last Tuesday on the Bells' diamond. It was the first victory for the Bells over the locals this season.

The score was tied going into the eighth when the Bells punched three straight singles off Right-hander Allan Olk. Olk retired the next Bell batter on a strike-out, and then the Bells pushed the winning run across on the squeeze.

With the score against them in the seventh, 6-1, the Orange and Black rallied for five runs in the seventh to tie it up. Johnny Chacon's 3-run homer was the big blow.

MOUNTAIN VIEW POPS WASHINGTON'S TITLE BUBBLE IN ONE AWFUL FRAME

By BOB HIRD

Exploding for ten big runs in the second frame, the Mountain View Eagles last Thursday ruined Washington High's chance of a SCVAL baseball co-championship, trouncing the locals in a wild slug-fest, 17-6, on the victors' diamond.

The loss left the Huskies in third place in the loop, since it was the locals' last game. They ended with a 4-3 season mark.

Washington started the crucial contest by scoring one run on Frank Murakami's single.

The disastrous second stanza started with two Husky errors. Left Fielder Ed Romero dropped a fly ball, and Don Santos booted the horseshoe on a sure double play. The whole nine then seemed to fall apart. The entire pitching staff, Allan Olk, Bob Hird, Bob Lunsford and Ed Romero, all saw action in the inning, as every member of the Eagle lineup scored at least one run.

The Centerville hurlers issued only four basehits, but yielded four bases on balls. Three miscues also hurt.

The Orange and Black, trying to get back into the ball game, tallied four runs on four hits in the fifth frame. Raul Orozco, Ernie Delgado and Ed King, all collected singles, while Dick Arington doubled.

The final Husky tally came in the seventh on Ed King's single.

The locals out-hit the Eagles ten to nine but committed seven errors. Arington and King each picked up two safeties to pace the Huskies at bat. Olk was charged with the defeat.

The Washington Hi Frosh-Soph nine won the B baseball title here last Thursday as they defeated Mountain View, 9-7.

Relief Pitcher Ralph Hernandez took over in the second inning and limited the Eagles to three safeties.

The Junior Huskies rallied for runs in the sixth frame for the win. First Baseman Craig Bellati rapped out a homer for the champs for the longest blow of the contest.

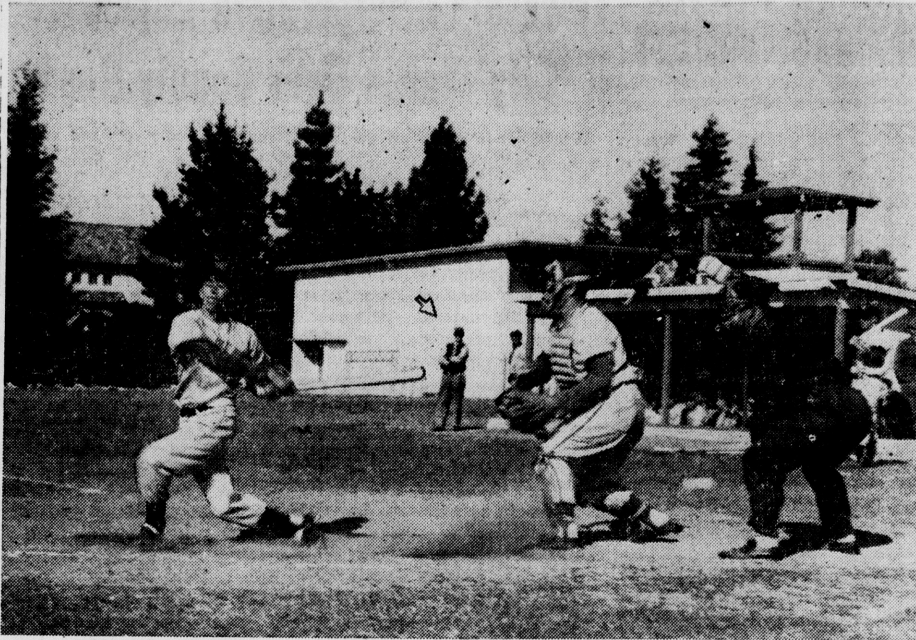

The Pups ended their league season with a 5-0 record, under the coaching of Ted Wallace. Wallace, who is a chemistry teacher, came through with the winning club in his first year of coaching.

Zone 6 Hearing

Public hearing on a $1,750,000 drainage project for Irvington, Mission San Jose and Warm Springs has been slated for June 11 by the Board of Supervisors.

On Tuesday, the supervisors set the date for the first hearing which will determine if they are to call a bond issue—probably for $500,000—next fall. The money would be used for canals and ditches in an effort to open the region for subdivision and industry.

SUZY SEZ...

The news that we'll have mail delivery here in Orchard Park by July is indeed welcome. I hope the other Township post offices will be able to deliver mail soon. Just think of how home delivery will cut down the late afternoon traffic jam at the Centerville post office!

It takes a few minutes longer each time I hang out clothes, but I've discovered that by hanging clothes in groups according to their destination when dry, saves a lot of time, later, when I put things away.

With the advent of imitation wire wheels, fake spare tire mounts, and plastic zebra skin seat covers, I wonder how long it'll be before we can buy an imitation automobile?

Speaking of automobiles, drive by the International Kitchen some Sunday and note the crowds of late-model expensive cars, our own Township Auto Show.

For a different taste and look, try thinning the egg mixture for french toast with tomato juice instead of milk.

The mother of an only child recently told me that she thinks one advantage of having two or more children is that when they feel rowdy they climb over each other, and not the parents. I showed her the scars I have to prove this isn't true. In fact, we will have the only peaked roof in Orchard Park if the children all start feeling frisky at the same time again. The peaked roof? From me hitting the ceiling, naturally.

I hear from our favorite Washington Hi teen-ager that the way to judge the relative merits of this University or that college is by the standing of its football team. It may come as a surprise to him that there are classrooms and studies at the school of his choice.

They say money doesn't make you happy, but it helps you to be miserable in comfort!

MYSTERY MAN WAS AIR FORCE CAPTAIN

(Here we are again with the Mystery Man. Do you have a candidate for mystery-ing? Write in your nominee, and we'll do a job on him.)

This week's subject was born in 1912 in San Jose. His grandfather came to California in the '60s, started mining for gold. Our man's father went to work for the State, supervising State Hospitals, including Agnew.

Our "mystery" went to schools in the Prune City, played baseball and tennis (once on the same team with Champion Donald Budge) and wound up at San Jose State.

After graduation in 1935, he went to work in San Juan Bautista. He was married in 1936 to a 'State co-ed—a campus romance.

He came to Washington Township in 1937, worked his way to the top of his profession before he took leave of absence to join the Air Force in 1942.

"It was just like I never left home," recalls our Private Mc-Mystery. "I went to Santa Ana, Tucson, La Junta and Camp Beale—but I was always doing what I did before I went in!"

He jokes that his discharge reads: "No wounds, no battles."

"I didn't even get to go through Officer Candidate School at Miami with Clark Gable," he laments. "He was a class ahead of me."

However, our Mystery Fellow must have done OK in The Wild Blue Hither, since the Air Force made him a captain before it let him loose in 1946.

He returned to the Township, to his old job, and has been at it ever since. It is one of the largest, and fastest-growing enterprises of its type in the Township—or even Alameda County.

Hobbies? Not much time for them. But photography is one he likes, when he can do it. Main hobby of course is being father to two youngsters.
